Dear Friends of PIFP:

On behalf of Villanova Law School's Walter Lucas Public Interest Fellowship Program (PIFP), we welcome you to the 2015 Public Interest Auction. This is our eighteenth annual Auction, and we are so excited to have you here. All proceeds from this Auction, as well as from our other fundraisers throughout the year, directly support summer and post-graduate public interest and public service work.

For the past seventeen years, and as a direct result of the support of the generous donors and guests here with us tonight, PIFP has provided summer fellowships to students working in otherwise unpaid public interest and public service programs. In addition, PIFP currently funds the law school's Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP), which awards stipends to recent graduates working in the public interest sector.

Since the first Auction in 1998, PIFP has raised over $770,000, funding more than 170 student fellowships and nine post-graduate fellowships. These fellowships have allowed PIFP fellows to aid under-funded and over-stretched public interest organizations throughout the country and the world. Last year, the support of the VLS administration, faculty, staff and student body enabled PIFP to fund fellowships for thirteen current students and one recent graduate, all of whom have dedicated their time and talents to serving underrepresented populations.

We would like to express our appreciation for all the students, faculty, administration, alumni, and staff who have so graciously supported PIFP's efforts throughout our eighteen years. Most especially, we thank you for joining us tonight as we celebrate our community's continued commitment to public interest work. Enjoy your evening!

Sincerely,

Samantha Epstein '15 and Meagan Potter '15
2014-2015 PIFP Co-Directors

Walter Lucas

The Walter Lucas Public Interest Fellowship Program is named in honor of Walter Lucas, a graduate of Villanova Law School's Class of 1988. In his lifetime, Walter was an unceasing advocate for the underdog. He became one of New Jersey's preeminent employment lawyers and lived a life that was marked by his indefatigable pursuit of justice.

In December 2008, members of the VLS Class of 1988 secured the naming rights for PIFP to honor Walter by raising $50,000 for the Campaign for Villanova Law. Walter died of complications from surgery at age 49 in August 2004. Prior to his death, he was President of the Essex County Bar Association, a partner in Lucas & Marose, the employment law firm he had founded, and a leading light in legal circles on workers' rights. The headline on his obituary in The Star-Ledger of Newark described him as a "Tireless Advocate."

Walter was a devoted husband to his wife, Kitta MacPherson, and his three children, Walter Jr., Wendy, and Wyatt. Walter was also a dear friend to many. Walter was an employment discrimination attorney who fought for victims who were fired on the basis of age, race, gender, and/or religion. He learned the art of the struggle at an early age. Abandoned by his divorced parents when he was just a toddler, he endured a difficult childhood, which he spent bouncing between orphanages and foster homes.

During his hardscrabble childhood, Walter was grateful for the support of his Aunt and Uncle, who pushed him and encouraged him when no one else did. Debbie and John Lucas were a fork lift operator and auto worker, respectively. They often told their nephew he could make something of himself.

While living in an orphanage outside of Philadelphia, Walter attended Father Judge High School and became a champion scholastic debater. He won a full scholarship to the University of Pennsylvania, which he attended for a year. He transferred to Harvard but dropped out a year shy of graduation when his financial aid ran out.

For several years after, Walter worked as a journalist where he won many first place writing awards and met his future wife. He was a reporter for the News-Tribune of Woodbridge and The Record of Hackensack, where his work included coverage of John Lennon’s murder in 1980.

After he married, Walter returned to college and graduated from Rutgers University in 1985. From there, he went on to earn his law degree at Villanova Law School in 1988, where he enjoyed many student activities. He served as the school’s newspaper editor, a member of the Women’s Law Caucus, and a member of the Black Law Students Association.

After graduating from Villanova Law, he worked as a defense lawyer, first as a deputy attorney general in the Division of Law’s Claims Service Section and then in Newark at DeMaria, Ellis, Hunt & Salsberg. He later switched sides, joining a Newark plaintiffs’ firm, Rienhardt & Schachter.
Walter’s personality, his desire to represent people instead of businesses, and his working class roots made him well-suited for plaintiffs’ work, particularly discrimination cases. When people he met socially for the first time asked him what he did for a living, he would sometimes answer with a booming laugh, “I sue corporations.”

He managed to keep his ties to journalism after he started his legal career. He took a leave from the practice of law in 1991 and 1992 to work full time on the Law Journal, serving as a law editor and a reporter. He won a New Jersey Press Association award for the Law Journal’s first annual report on pro bono work completed by the state’s largest firms. And he caused a stir in the highest councils of the judiciary by breaking a story that Chief Justice Robert Wilentz had suppressed an internal poll that showed an alarming number of judges and court administrators believed racism was rampant in the courts.

After leaving the Law Journal in 1992, Lucas was associated with two other well-known employee rights’ practices, Linda Kenney’s firm in Red Bank and Smith Mullin in Montclair. He started his own practice in 1994.

Most recently, Walter represented Essex County Superior Court Judge Francine Schott in an unprecedented suit alleging that her judicial assignments were made based on gender discrimination.

He was a leader of the National Employment Lawyers Association, a lecturer for the Institute for Continuing Legal Education and an adjunct Professor at Seton Hall University, where he was quite popular among students.

According to friends, Walter will be remembered as much for his compassion and his genius for making friends as for his considerable professional accomplishments.

“He took the time to know people he met,” partner Evelyn Marose told a New Jersey Law Journal reporter. “He took the time when he met you to not only remember your name but to remember things about you that were important to you. He asked those kinds of questions.”

“There was no such thing as a client Walter was finished with,” Marose says. “You were his client and friend forever. I loved practicing law with him and in today’s world where partnerships don’t last; that’s a real unique thing.”

Domenick Carmagnola, a former Essex Bar president and one of many defense attorneys who admired Walter said, “He was honest, he was hardworking, he was fair, you could trust him if he gave you his word and he was good at what he did. He liked people and people liked him and he worked harder than anyone I know for the bar.”

The Walter Lucas Public Interest Fellowship Program is proud to play a role continuing Walter Lucas’ legacy.
In September of 2013, the Villanova Community lost a gifted scholar, educator, mentor, and beloved friend. Penelope (“Penny”) Pether began teaching at Villanova in 2005. She taught courses ranging from Law and Literature to constitutional and criminal law. Her passion for justice on a wide range of public interest issues made her a mentor for so many students—particularly those interested in public interest law. She was widely published for work specializing in feminist legal theory, racial discrimination, and rape-law reform. She also dedicated her time and efforts to the Inside-Out Prison Exchange Program—an educational program that brings law students and incarcerated men and women together in one classroom behind prison walls. She worked tirelessly to provide students with a more holistic legal education where law was more than words in dusty books, but with living realities and consequences—all the while, maintaining a one-of-a-kind sense of humor.

When she wasn’t busy with her extensive publications and preparing dynamic lectures, Professor Pether made time to garden and cook masterfully. She often invited students and entire student organizations over to her home for incredible meals. Her dedication to students was evidenced in her continued efforts both in and out of the classroom.

Professor Pether and her husband, Professor David Caudill, have been long-time supporters of PIFP as well as individual students seeking careers in public interest law. Because of her commitment to public interest law and the support she gave to students—and mostly because we loved her—the Public Interest Fellowship Program wishes to remember Professor Pether by naming a public interest fellowship in her honor. One student working in one of the many fields of Professor Pether’s scholarship will be given the “Penelope Pether Public Interest Fellowship.”

Professor Pether’s passing is a tremendous loss to Villanova, the public interest community, and the legal community at large. But we are comforted in knowing that her legacy will live on in the many students she inspired as they pursue lives and careers dedicated to justice, service, and scholarship. Thank you, Penny.

CHECK OUT PROCEDURE

LOCATION: Room 101 (payment) & Room 102 (item pick-up)

TIME: We will begin checking out all winning bidders immediately following the completion of the Live Auction in Room 101.*

PROCEDURE:

1. Check if you are a WINNER!
   - Live Auction Winners will be announced during the Live Auction.
   - At the end of the Live Auction, winning bidder numbers from the Silent Auction will be scrolling on the televisions screens throughout the law school.
   - A list of Fishbowl Auction winners will be posted outside Room 102 prior to the conclusion of the live auction. Winners can go directly to Room 102 to pick-up their item(s).

2. Proceed to Room 101 to pay.
   - Please have your bidder number ready.
   - We have four check-out stations tonight. Please be patient if a short wait is necessary – rest assured that we are working as quickly as possible!
   - We accept cash, check, and the following credit cards: Visa, MasterCard, and Discover. Unfortunately, we do not accept American Express.

3. After paying, take your invoice to Room 102 to collect your items. Congratulations!
   - Please note: for security purposes, no items will be handed out without an invoice.

THANK YOU AGAIN FOR YOUR GENEROUS SUPPORT OF PIFP!
WE HOPE YOU ENJOYED THE EVENING AND WISH YOU A SAFE TRIP HOME.

*If you must leave early, and if we determine that you have won an auction item, we will contact you to make payment arrangements and to schedule a time for you to pick-up your item(s). Any questions or concerns about check-out, item pick-up, and/or item payment can be directed to Natasha Felder, Treasurer, at nfarme01@law.villanova.edu.
