Teresa (Terri) M. Boyer, EdD, ’95 CLAS, is the director of the Anne Welsh McNulty Institute for Women’s Leadership and an associate professor of Education and Counseling. The McNulty Institute was created in 2017 to foster women’s advancement through education, advocacy, community-building and the collaborative creation of new knowledge. Dr. Boyer is an accomplished author who has published widely on educational and workforce equity, institutional reform for equity, women’s education and leadership, the effectiveness of equity programs, and assessment and teacher training.

Linda Tina Maldonado, PhD, RN, is an assistant professor in the M. Louise Fitzpatrick College of Nursing. Dr. Maldonado is well published on the subjects of maternal caregiving demands, and Latina intergenerational caregiving. She has been an academic guest lecturer at the University of Pennsylvania for the Midwifery Program. After receiving her PhD from the University of Pennsylvania in 2013, Dr. Maldonado was appointed as a Ruth L. Kirschstein NRSA Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of Pennsylvania’s Center for Global Women’s Health and Health Equity Research.

Meredith MacKenzie Greenle, PhD, RN, ANP-BC, CNE, is an assistant professor at the M. Louise Fitzpatrick College of Nursing and a nurse practitioner at the Unity Clinic in Philadelphia. She focuses her research on end of life outcomes and support for family caregivers, as well as how to provide the best care for aging adults. Dr. MacKenzie Greenle is an expert on a number of end-of-life healthcare issues including end-of-life treatment preferences, costs of care for chronically ill aging adults, and hospice care outcomes.

Lauren Miltenberger, PhD, is an expert on the influence of government on nonprofit organizations. She is an assistant professor in the Department of Public Administration at The College of Liberal Art and Sciences here at Villanova, and a nonprofit coordinator. Her research focuses on nonprofit, specifically in government relations and human capital management and leadership.

Melissa J. Hodges, PhD, is an assistant professor in the Department of Sociology and Criminology at Villanova. Her work has appeared in the American Sociological Review and Gender & Society. Her most recent work examining the mechanisms generating wage penalties for different types of care occupations is forthcoming in Social Problems. She is a past recipient of the Reuben Hill Award from the National Council on Family Relations and the Rosabeth Moss Kanter Award for Research Excellence in Families and Work. Her research interests include gender wage inequality associated with children within households and paid and unpaid care work.