Since the last meeting of this body, the Faculty Working Group has met collectively once with John Kelley for training in focus group administration (11/12/09), and maintained communication electronically. During this period the following tasks were accomplished in addition to data collection and analysis at the Working Group-sponsored town hall, and Fr. Donahue's two town halls. An additional four data sites were central to our collection and analysis. These were:

- the collection and analysis of data from five (5) archival repositories in the areas of recruitment and retention; community; scholarship and teaching; evaluation and assessment; and, national profile.
- Interviews with five (5) administrators.
- Administration of six (6) focus groups in the following areas: research, women, full time non-tenure track faculty, adjunct faculty, minority and ethnic faculty, and teaching and learning.

By the end of the fall semester, précis had been submitted of the analyses of the archival data. This in combination with the analyses from the other pools is being outlined in anticipation for a preliminary draft of the Faculty Working Group's report for late January, early February at which time the Faculty Working Group will begin the editorial process.
