

ANDREW DONOVAN

Vice President, Collegiate Partnerships at Altius Sports Partners

As Vice President, Collegiate Partnerships, Andrew oversees university relationships and provides guidance to athletics departments in building customized NIL programs addressing rule changes, compliance support, institutional policy, new opportunities, and educational programming. Andrew comes to Altius after serving as Senior Associate Athletics Director for Regulatory Affairs at the University of Tennessee where he was responsible for overseeing all areas of a comprehensive compliance program for the university's 20 intercollegiate athletics teams and served as sport administrator for seven of the Volunteers' sport programs. He has been a member of the National Association for Athletics Compliance (NAAC) for more than a decade, most recently having served as NAAC President during the 2020-21 academic year. Prior to his arrival at Tennessee, Andrew held a similar leadership role in the athletics department at Marshall University and taught in the school's undergraduate and graduate sports management programs. He previously served as the Director of Compliance/Education and Communications at LSU.
