THE COVID-19 EFFECT ON SPORTS
THE BRANDT REPORT is an annual White Paper presentation to inform and educate students, sports industry professionals and other interested parties about a current sports law/business/policy topic that has experienced disruption in the prior year. The Report is prepared and constructed with research and analysis by students from the Jeffrey S. Moorad Center for the Study of Sports Law at Villanova School of Law, under the guidance of Executive Director Andrew Brandt. The Moorad Center and Brandt are thought leaders on legal and business aspects of sports and the changing dynamics in sports law, sports business, sports media, sports policy and sports thought. The 2021 Brandt Report focuses on the topic of the Covid-19 Effect on Sports.
As the Executive Director of the Moorad Center, I wanted to welcome you to the 2nd Annual Brandt Report.

The Moorad Center has, since its inception in 2012, set a new standard in sports legal and business education. Leading from over 60 years of experience in the business of sports between our founder Jeffrey Moorad and myself, we take deep dives into the most incisive and topical sports content year after year, semester after semester, week after week. We have a robust curriculum of sports law and business courses and our students are perennial winners at annual student competitions around the country. We have top industry professionals as guest speakers and as our Board of Advisors; we host an annual Symposium that has become a staple of the sports event calendar.

Now the Brandt Report becomes another differentiator to our program: an annual White Paper where our students display comprehensive knowledge and research on a central and topical area in sports. The Report serves a wide audience including other students throughout the country and the world as well as sports industry professionals, media and more. Our inaugural topic last year was the State of Sports Betting in America.

We now present our second annual Brandt Report focusing on the Covid-19 Effect on Sports over the past year. In here you will find the extraordinary impact of the Covid-19 virus on sports across the globe: how the sport was affected, how the sport returned to play (or not), health and safety protocols, negative financial consequences and assessing each sport's future in dealing with the continuing virus impacts.

Enjoy this in-depth look at the Covid-19 Effect on Sports. We hope you find it a helpful and informative resource. Thank you for your support.

—Andrew Brandt, Executive Director

PROFESSIONAL SPORTS AND COVID-19
The season resumed inside the Orlando Bubble, beginning with exhibition games.

PLAYOFFS
Los Angeles Lakers won their 17th NBA Finals, defeating the Miami Heat.
When the NBA season paused, 258 games were canceled and not made up, leading to a loss of $694 million.

The NBA spent $180 million to operate 100 days of basketball in its Orlando Bubble.

The Bubble operation allowed the NBA to avoid losing their broadcasting deals worth $1.5 billion dollars.
ORLANDO BUBBLE

• The NBA bubbled in Orlando at Disney World and invited 22 teams. Only teams in contention for a playoff spot were invited. 16 of the 22 teams in the bubble made the playoffs. The Orlando Bubble allowed the NBA to continue play during the height of the Covid-19 pandemic

• The NBA’s bubble experiment worked, as there were 0 positive Covid-19 tests for players throughout the entirety of the Orlando Bubble
• 9 NBA players opted out of the Bubble

• Players who opted out faced losing up to 15% of their salary

• For example, Avery Bradley of the Los Angeles Lakers, opted out of the NBA Orlando Bubble and lost roughly $650,000 of his $4,469,063 salary
The National Basketball Players Association (NBPA) approved a shortened season with a 72-game regular season schedule running from December 22, 2020 to May 16, 2021.

The NBA decided on a play-in tournament for the seventh and eighth playoff seeds which will include teams with the seventh-highest through the tenth-highest winning percentages in each conference.

All-Star Game on March 7, 2021 at State Farm Arena in Atlanta.

NBA will commit $2.5 million in funds and resources toward Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) and support awareness around equity and access to Covid-19 care, relief, and vaccines.
NHL SEASON TIMELINE

MARCH 12 2020
NHL paused its season due to Covid-19

The NHL and NHLPA ratified a 4-year extension to the CBA and a plan to return to play

AUGUST 1–SEPTEMBER 28 2020
PLAYOFFS
The Tampa Bay Lightning won their 2nd Stanley Cup in franchise history by defeating the Dallas Stars
NHL SEASON ECONOMICS

• 50% of NHL revenue is generated directly and indirectly from ticket sales

• The NHL salary cap will remain at $81.5 million for the 2020-2021 season

• NHL Commissioner Gary Bettman said the league and clubs will lose billions of dollars from the shortened 2020-2021 season

“It would be cheaper for us to shut the doors and not play. We're going to lose more money, at the club level and the league level, by playing than by not playing.” —GARY BETTMAN
• The deadline to opt out without discipline or penalty for the 2019-2020 season was July 13, 2020

  • During the 2019-2020 season, only 6 players opted out of the NHL Return to Play Plan

• The opt out deadline for the 2020-2021 season was December 24, 2020 for non-playoff teams, while the opt out deadline was December 27, 2020 for players on teams who competed in the 2019-2020 playoffs
The NHL bubbled by conference, with the Western Conference in Edmonton and the Eastern Conference in Toronto.

Only 12 teams from each conference were invited to the bubbles to play to determine which teams would move forward in the Stanley Cup Playoffs.
The NHL began its 2021 regular season on January 13, 2021. The 2020-2021 season was shortened to 56 games from the usual 82 games. Although the NHL could lose billions this season, NHL Commissioner Bettman stated “We’re coming back to play this season because we think it's important for the game, because our fans and our players want us to, and it may give people—particularly in isolation, or where there are curfews—a sense of normalcy and something to do”
MLB SEASON TIMELINE

MARCH 12 2020
MLB postponed spring training games and pushed back the regular season start date

JUNE 23 2020
After months of negotiations between the MLB and MLBPA, MLB commissioner Rob Manfred mandated a 60-game season and the players agreed to comply

Truncated season began and MLB and MLBPA jointly announced an expanded 2020 postseason

SEPTEMBER 29–OCTOBER 27 2020
The Los Angeles Dodgers won the World Series
During the World Series clinching game, Justin Turner tested positive for Covid-19 and was taken off the field in the 7th inning, but returned to the field after the game for celebrations
MLB SEASON ECONOMICS

- Players earned full prorated salaries for the 60-game regular season

- A 60-game season is 37% of a normal 162-game season

- The MLB estimated losses of $3.1 billion for the 2020 season

Bryce Harper made $9.4 of his $25 million salary; J.T. Realmuto made $3.7 million of his $10 million salary
MLB OPT OUTS

- Players designated as “high-risk” by a team doctor could opt out of the season and still receive service time and their full prorated salary for the 60-game season.

- Players who were not high-risk could also opt out but had to surrender salaries and service time.

- Players could opt out at any time in the season and could also choose to opt back in at any time in the season.
MLB OPERATIONAL CHANGES

• The MLB played a 60-game season instead of its normal 162-game season (37% of normal season)

• The MLB did not implement a full bubble season like some other sports did, but it did implement a postseason bubble, which had a 54-day streak of no new positive Covid-19 test

• No fans were allowed during the regular season, but limited spectators were allowed at the National League Championship Series and the World Series

As of October 23rd, the MLB collected 172,740 samples over the season, 91 of which were positive
The MLB and MLBPA disagreed over whether to delay the 2021 season, therefore forcing them to defer to the CBA and play a full 162-game season.

The 2021 season will begin in April.

Commissioner Manfred said the MLB will “be more aggressive” about having fans in the stands in the 2021 season if there is local government and health department approval.

NOVEMBER 27, 2020
Baltimore Ravens
23 Ravens players were placed on the Covid-19 list
3 games were rescheduled to different days of the week as a result
According to Marc Ganis, co-founder of Chicago-based consulting group Sportscorp, the NFL lost an estimated $3-4 billion despite playing during the pandemic.

2020 salary cap remained the same at $198 million, but the 2021 cap was reduced to $182.5 million.
NFL OPERATIONAL CHANGES

STADIUM CAPACITY
• NFL games had varying capacities of fans throughout the season

ROSTER
• Practice squad was expanded from 12 to 16 players
• Players placed on Covid-19 Injured Reserve could return after 3 weeks

BUBBLING
• Bubbling is not feasible for the NFL given roster sizes, practice rosters, coaching staffs, and medical staffs. They did not bubble for the 2020-2021 season and will not bubble next season either

“We don’t see the bubble as most refer to it in one location. We feel strongly our protocols are working. We’re willing to adjust and adapt those protocols, take additional steps. But I don’t see us doing the bubble in the sense that the media focuses on it.”
— ROGER GOODELL
when asked whether the NFL would bubble for the 2021-2022 NFL season
NFL OPT OUTS

• Approximately 67 NFL players opted out of the 2020-2021 NFL season

• The NFL classified the players who opted out as either low-risk or high-risk
PROFESSIONAL SOCCER
BUNDESLIGA (GERMANY)

2020

The season was suspended

BUNDESLIGA

MAY 16
2020

The season resumed. The Bundesliga was the first sport to return to play after the pandemic halted sports around the globe, and it did so successfully

“The Bundesliga was just an incredible role model. It was a relief for us here in England.”
— JURGEN KLOPP, Liverpool Head Coach
• Average attendance for the Bundesliga is second only to the NFL

• Resuming the season without fans led to up to a $110 million loss in revenue per team

• The league would have lost an additional $812 million in revenue if the 2020 season did not resume, due to broadcasting deals
OTHER PROFESSIONAL SOCCER LEAGUES RETURNED TO PLAY

JUNE 11 2020
- La Liga (Spain)

JUNE 17 2020
- Premier League (United Kingdom)

JUNE 20 2020
- Serie A (Italy)

JULY 8 2020
- MLS (United States)

HOW DID THE LEAGUES RETURN?
The professional soccer leagues approached returned to play during the Covid-19 pandemic with empty stadiums, multiple Covid-19 tests per week, and individual/team quarantines when necessary.
INDIVIDUAL SPORTS CASE STUDY: GOLF

GENERAL OPERATION CHANGES
• March 12, 2020—The Players Championship was canceled
• Due to the nature of golf, there weren’t many operational changes

RULES AND GUIDELINES
• A symptom-based model was used to start the season, then on July 1, 2020 transitioned to a testing-based model to track asymptomatic cases
• Professional golf began using Whoop as a partner to track the health of players

PRACTICE RESTART
• Players were able to practice throughout the pandemic
GOLF TOURNAMENTS

RETURN OF TOURNAMENT PLAY
• The first full tournament was the Charles Schwab on June 11, 2020.
• However, there were charity golf events earlier such as “The Match” between Tom Brady, Peyton Manning, Phil Mickelson, and Tiger Woods. The Match raised $20,000,000 for Covid-19 relief.

THE MASTERS
• The Masters was originally scheduled from April 9-12, 2020. 3 days before the event, it was postponed to November 12-15, 2020. Dustin Johnson won the 2020 Masters with a record score of 268, 20 strokes under par.
• Since golf is an individual sport, opt outs were not a concern. Players who did not want to play a certain tournament, simply did not register.
• Golf training was relatively uninterrupted, but tournaments were delayed for some time. This shifted schedule led to many golfers playing tournaments they would not have normally played.
COLLEGE ATHLETICS AND COVID-19
• 30 schools cut a total of 86 non-revenue-producing programs across 22 different sports

• 1,389 athletes were affected by the program cuts (not including indoor track and field athletes)

• Number of athletes impacted by indoor track and field cuts was not reported because they are the same athletes competing on the outdoor team

  • However, schools that cut cross country or indoor track and field are weakening their program, and thus, could see many of their outdoor track and field athletes transfer to schools offering all 3 seasons as supporting all 3 seasons is the norm

• Although 7 less swimming and diving programs were cut than tennis programs, 25 more swimming and athletes were affected by the cuts

The University of Texas, the highest grossing athletic department in 2018-2019 with revenues north of $220 million, eliminated 35 staff members. Texas issued pay cuts for 26 coaches and administrators, temporarily reduced 273 staff members’ salaries, and temporarily furloughed 11 staffers.

NCAA furloughed about 600 employees for 3-8 weeks.
The Ivy League canceled all sports, making it the first major college football cancellation due to Covid-19.

Myocarditis, inflammation of the heart muscle, was diagnosed in at least 5 Big Ten Conference athletes and in several other athletes in other conferences.

Clemson’s quarterback, Trevor Lawrence tested positive for Covid-19 and was not allowed to play against Notre Dame.

When Vanderbilt football kickers were sidelined, goalkeeper Sarah Fuller stepped up and assumed the starting kicker role. By doing so, she became the first woman to participate and score in a Power 5 football game.
Approximately 151 FBS college football players opted out of the 2020 college football season.

Of those 151 players, approximately 5 of those players were projected first-round NFL draft picks.
COLLEGE FOOTBALL OPERATIONAL CHANGES

CANCELED/POSTPONED GAMES
• 139 games were canceled or postponed during the 2020 regular season due to Covid-19

FAN CAPACITIES
• Some schools allowed up to 25% capacity, while other schools did not allow fans to attend games

The Big East canceled the remainder of its tournament during halftime of the quarterfinal game between Creighton and Saint John’s. The other major NCAA conferences also canceled their conference tournaments.

NCAA President Mark Emmert and the Board of Governors canceled the 2020 NCAA tournaments. It was the first time the men’s tournament was not held since it debuted in 1939.

NOVEMBER 16 2020

The NCAA announced that the entire 2021 NCAA Men’s Basketball Tournament would be held in Indianapolis, Indiana and the 2021 Women’s Basketball Tournament would be held in Houston, Texas.

NOVEMBER 25 2020

The 2020-2021 Division I college basketball season began.

DECEMBER 23 2020

The NCAA filed several federal trademark applications including one for the phrase “Mask Madness”.
Although the Tournament was canceled, the NCAA had cancellation insurance of $270 million, which included ticket and media rights related revenue losses.

Before the pandemic, the NCAA was projected to distribute $600 million earned from the 2020 NCAA Tournament among its Division I schools. Because the tournament was canceled, the NCAA was only able to distribute $225 million. This is about 1/3 of the expected payout, which hurt college athletics budgets nationwide.
THE OLYMPIC MOVEMENT
The 2020 Summer Olympics in Tokyo were scheduled to take place from July 24 to August 9, 2020

MARCH 4, 2020
The Olympics were postponed for 1 year due to the Covid-19 pandemic

JULY 23–AUGUST 8, 2021
The Olympics are scheduled for July 23 to August 8, 2021 in Tokyo, Japan
The cost of postponing the 2020 Olympic Games is projected to reach up to $2.8 billion according to the Tokyo organizing committee.

- $1.64 billion of this added cost comes from operational costs of the delay.
- $920 million of this added cost comes from Covid-19 countermeasures.

U.S. Olympic and Paralympic Foundation established the Covid-19 Athlete Assistance Fund to support athletes financially affected by the Covid-19 pandemic and the postponement of the Tokyo Olympics and Paralympics. Over $1.4 million was raised and was distributed to 1,220 U.S. Olympic athletes in a one-time $1,163 stipend.
JANUARY 29 2020

FEBRUARY 29 2020

The Olympic Marathon trials took place in Atlanta, Georgia before the Covid-19 pandemic halted sport across the world just weeks later. Marathons and track meets were largely canceled.

JUNE 11 2020

The Wanda Diamond League pro circuit began. The first meet was aptly called “The Impossible Games” due to overcoming the seemingly impossible task of hosting an international track meet during a global pandemic.
• Meet operations and cancellations were determined on a meet-by-meet basis
• Professional track athletes rely on sponsorship deals and prize money rather than salaries
  • Sponsorship deals usually require participation in a minimum number of competitions per year
• Athletes got creative to meet their sponsorship minimums
  • Virtual dual meets
    • In June, the Atlanta Track Club Elite raced the Oregon Track Club Elite in a dual meet where the teams ran at the same time on tracks on opposite U.S. coasts
    • The American Track League was created by well-known track agent Paul Doyle, to provide competition opportunities for athletes
• The USA Track and Field Foundation provided elite athletes with a $400 stipend to put toward portable equipment, since access to weight rooms and gyms was restricted during the pandemic
SOCIAL JUSTICE IN SPORTS
SOCIAL JUSTICE TIMELINE

FEBRUARY 23 2020
Ahmaud Arbery, a 25-year-old unarmed Black man was followed, shot, and killed while he was out for a jog in Glynn County, Georgia. The shooting was captured on video, however 74 days passed before Arbery’s killers were arrested on murder and aggravated assault charges.

AUGUST 23 2020
Jacob Blake, a 29-year-old Black man, was shot and seriously injured by a police officer in Kenosha, Wisconsin. Kenosha County’s prosecutors announced that the officers involved in Blake’s shooting will not be charged.
SOCIAL JUSTICE IN THE NBA

JUNE 12, 2020

In response to nationwide unrest stemming from racial injustice, systemic racism, and police brutality, amid an ongoing pandemic, a group of 80-plus players discussed paths toward unity and solutions. Notable players included NBPA vice president Kyrie Irving, NBPA president Chris Paul, Kevin Durant, Carmelo Anthony, Dwight Howard, Donovan Mitchell, and Avery Bradley.

AUGUST 26, 2020

The Milwaukee Bucks refused to participate in their first-round playoff game against the Orlando Magic following the Jacob Blake shooting in Kenosha, Wisconsin.

AUGUST 28, 2020

In response to player demands, the NBA announced that, “in every city where the league franchise owns and controls the arena property, team governors will continue to work with local elections officials to convert the facility into a voting location for the 2020 general election to allow for a safe in-person voting option for communities vulnerable to COVID.”

NOVEMBER 20, 2020

The NBA and its players formally created a social justice coalition consisting of players, coaches, and governors, to focus on issues including increasing access to voting, promoting civic engagement, and advocating for meaningful police and criminal justice reform.
SOCIAL JUSTICE IN THE NFL

JUNE 4 2020

Several prominent NFL players, including Saquon Barkley, Odell Beckham Jr., and Patrick Mahomes, released a video asking the NFL to release a statement: [1] condemning racism and the systematic oppression of Black People, [2] admitting they were wrong to silence players from peacefully protesting, and [3] stating that Black Lives Matter.

JUNE 5 2020

Roger Goodell released a video on the NFL’s Twitter page saying, “We, the NFL, condemn racism and the systematic oppression of Black People. We, the NFL, admit we were wrong for not listening to NFL players earlier and encourage all to speak out and peacefully protest. We, the NFL, believe Black Lives Matter.”

Over the summer of 2020, the NFL promised to commit $250,000,000 over 10 years to a fund to combat systemic racism and support the battle against injustices faced by African Americans.
SOCIAL JUSTICE IN NASCAR

JUNE 8 2020
NASCAR banned the display of the confederate flag from all NASCAR events and properties after Bubba Wallace’s request. Wallace was NASCAR’s sole Black driver as of 2020.

JUNE 21 2020
A member of Bubba Wallace’s racing team reported to NASCAR officials that a noose was found in Wallace’s garage stall at Talladega Superspeedway.

JUNE 22 2020
The FBI concluded that the alleged noose was a pull-down rope with a loop and that Wallace was not a victim of a hate crime.

On that same day, NASCAR drivers walked in solidarity with Wallace prior to the race.
Ahmaud Arbery’s death caused a massive reaction within the running community

• A virtual run was organized attracting hundreds of thousands of participants across 6 continents. Participants ran 2.23 miles and posted to social media with the hashtag “#IRUNWITHMAUD.” The organizers planned to continue the event on the 23rd of each month until the trial of the men that shot Arbery

• New Balance donated 10,000 pairs of shoes to Black organizations in Atlanta, GA throughout the month

• The 2:23 Foundation, a nonprofit established in memory of Arbery, hosted a virtual run called #FinishTheRun
  • The 2:23 Foundation, “fights against systemic injustice by providing people with scholarships, training, leadership opportunities, and tools to pursue public offices.”
  • Professional and Olympic runners and entire elite track clubs supported the virtual run
  • Prominent footwear companies including Saucony and Brooks donated significant sums to the 2:23 Foundation, encouraged participation, and released statements of support

“...this is not about running. This is about black people being able to live their lives without fear of consequence that someone is going to make a set of assumptions about them and call the police on them, or in this case, take action into their own hands by making an assumption that they’re a criminal. That is ridiculous.” —MICHAEL JOHNSON, 4x Olympic Gold Medalist, and 3x World Record holder
SOCIAL JUSTICE IN THE WNBA

• The WNBA has been at the forefront of social justice and activism for years
• The WNBA dedicated their 2020 season to Breonna Taylor, the Black Lives Matter Movement, and the Say Her Name Campaign
• The WNBA announced a Social Justice Council of players and activists to push conversations around social issues forward
• The Washington Mystics wore white shirts that spelled Jacob Blake’s name across the front and had seven bullet holes on the back to represent the police shooting of Jacob Blake
  • The Washington Mystics chose not to play their games on Aug. 26, 2020, and WNBA games scheduled for the day were postponed
• Maya Moore took the season off to work to overturn the wrongful conviction of Jonathan Irons on burglary and assault charges. Irons, sentenced to 50 years in prison, was exonerated and released on July 1, 2020. Moore and Irons have since married and have continued to work on prison reform
• Covid-19 caused the sports world at large to shut down in March 2020

• The professional and collegiate sports leagues worked toward resuming play amidst the pandemic, with some of those leagues opting to “bubble”

• The NBA showed us that “bubbling” works, as the NBA was able to resume play and have zero NBA players test positive for Covid-19 while in the Orlando Bubble

• Players across many leagues leveraged their voices to speak out about social justice issues, pushing for conversations and actions from both the leagues and society at large
• Despite the various professional and collegiate sports leagues being able to resume play during the pandemic, Covid-19 is still an issue
• Due to Covid-19, there will be long-term player salary ramifications for professional sports leagues
• Additionally, further eliminations of collegiate sports are likely
• Opt out deadlines are favored by teams so they can plan their rosters accordingly. It is in the interest of the players to have flexibility when it comes to opting out so they can adjust their decision as circumstances change. This balance will be important to consider going forward, especially as the MLB’s new CBA is negotiated
• Broadcasting rights make up a large chunk of most leagues’ revenues, making upholding broadcasting agreements critically important in the sports industry
