Ph.D. Program Enrollment Acknowledgement Form

1. Your admission into the Ph.D. program does not in any way constitute a commitment for financial aid or tuition assistance. The primary means of financial assistance for Ph.D. students is through research assistantships from research centers or individual faculty members in the college. Unless you have made prior arrangements with a particular faculty member, your application is being circulated to relevant faculty who may have an interest in your application. If there is interest in offering you a research assistantship, you will be contacted by the research center or individual faculty member directly in the next few weeks.

2. You have been admitted specifically into the Villanova University College of Engineering Ph.D. Program with the expectation that you will complete the Ph.D. degree. After you have officially entered the program and taken classes for academic credit under a tuition waiver provided by the University, Villanova University is under no obligation to change your status to a Master's degree candidate or to approve the transference of class credits towards a Master's degree at Villanova University.
